With the U.S. Presidential Election coming to a conclusion, one of the best ways to wrap up all we've learned from the Bible about our role in politics is to pray. Here are some ways we can do that:

1. Pray for peace in our nation through the election process. Pray for an absence of violence and bloodshed.
2. Pray for healing. No matter who wins, there are deep divides that will need healing and reconciliation in our nation.
3. Pray for us as a church. Pray that this series we've been in will serve our ongoing unity. Pray that no matter how this election goes, and who we voted for, we will be first and foremost brothers and sisters in Christ who are part of a loving, functional family. So whether it's Meck or another church, pray for your church.
4. Pray for our next group of elected senators, representatives, and Supreme Court. Pray for wisdom, pray for healing, pray for discernment, pray for character.
5. Pray for our next president. No matter who they are or how you voted, pray for them. Pray they would have wisdom. Pray that their relationship with God, whatever it is, would only grow. However you feel led, pray for our next president.
